35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 7-9 provides for the use of pressure balancing device, but, since the claim does not set forth any steps involved in the method/process, it is unclear what method/process applicant is intending to encompass. A claim is indefinite where it merely recites a use without any active, positive steps delimiting how this use is actually practiced.

Claims 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed recitation of a use, without setting forth any steps involved in the process, results in an improper definition of a process, i.e., results in a claim which is not a proper process claim under 35 U.S.C. 101. See for example Ex parte Dunki, 153 USPQ 678 (Bd.App. 1967) and Clinical Products, Ltd. v. Brenner, 255 F. Supp. 131, 149 USPQ 475 (D.D.C. 1966).

Claims 4-9 are objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c) as being in improper form because a multiple dependent claim cannot depend from a multiple dependent claim. See MPEP § 608.01(n). Accordingly, the claim has not been further treated on the merits.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Griffith in view of Politi. Griffith shows a pressure balancing arrangement with two individual valves. Each valve has a chamber (where the "51" is in Fig. 2) having inlet 16 and exhaust 71 (Fig. 1, left valve), and a valve moving in the chamber. Piston 70 forms a closed chamber connected to the chamber of the other (right hand) valve. The valves are spring biased closed. Politi shows a several embodiments of a fluid actuated valve, including a piston operated unit (Figs. 6-7) like Griffith, and an equivalent metallic bellows unit (Fig. 4). It would have been obvious to replace the Griffith piston 70 with a metallic bellows as shown by Politi to be functionally equivalent, ant to eliminate piston leakage.

Claims 2-3 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Nash shows a device similar to applicants, where both valves are in a common housing. The control chambers are connected in the same way as applicant's device, but the valves are biased open. Eriksson shows another coaxial pressure balancer. Reedy shows another valve with a spring biased metallic diaphragm.
